Build a foundation to support students who have experienced trauma and make your classroom a safe space

Attendees gain strategies, interventions and accommodations to support students who have experienced acute or chronic stress by coupling knowledge of neurobiology with practical approaches that help foster safety, build partnerships, and support relationships while creating new experiences that increase academic and social emotional success.

Attendees ascertain skills to:

- Retrain the brain
- Foster safety
- Build partnerships
- Create new experiences
- Increase academic, social and emotional learning
- Promote healing in the classroom
- Support resiliency, build relationships, and increase risk-taking

Attendees increase knowledge of:

- Basic neurobiology and the impact of trauma
- How trauma impacts learning
- Recognition of symptoms of trauma
- Ways to promote healing
